

Brighton and Sussex Medico-Chirurgical Society

AEB January 7th 2016 6.30pm

Presidential Address: Dr Meg Price

“The man who was allergic to his wife or, choosing a specialty”

Dr Meg Price initially trained at Oxford and UCH. She first worked in Brighton as a House Surgeon in the seventies, after a spell in New Zealand and Bangladesh (undertaking a leprosy survey), she returned to Brighton and Guy's to complete her specialty training in Dermatology. She was appointed as a Consultant in Brighton in 1986 and was President of the British Association of Dermatologists in 2003-2004.

Meg will review some historical notes dating from the inception of the Med-Chi in the 19th century. She will also discuss how she came to choose her specialty and will give a brief introduction to the forthcoming lectures for the year.
