

Brighton and Sussex Medico-Chirurgical Society

---

Audrey Emerton May 5th 2016 6.30pm

Dr Malcolm Johnson

“Interventional Radiology-the modern surgical revolution”

Dr Malcolm Johnston is a consultant radiologist at Brighton and Sussex University Hospitals. He is also a senior lecturer and lead for radiology education at Brighton and Sussex Medical School.

He trained in radiology at the Royal Free Hospital in London before undertaking a specialist fellowship in Interventional Radiology in Vancouver, Canada. He has been a consultant since 2005 and is the Regional Clinical Lead for Interventional Radiology with particular interests in vascular, hepatobiliary and uro-intervention. He has recently published research on complex biopsy techniques, vascular intervention and is the lead investigator on fibroid embolisation and renal artery stenting trials. He has a strong commitment to undergraduate and postgraduate medical education and is on the education committee of the British Society of Intervention Radiology.