8th January 2015

Presidential Address:

“Death, Dissection and the Destitute”

Dr Ruth Barker

“I am a retired GP and was at the Brunswick Surgery on the borders of Brighton and Hove from 1997-2013. I entered medicine late having been a history graduate from the School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London. I went to teach history in an East End comprehensive school and was there for 10 years ending up as Head of House. I have been lucky to be able to combine my love of medicine and teaching: for 3 years I was part time senior lecturer HIV Education in Primary Care liaising with local practices and the RSCH Lawson Unit to raise awareness of HIV in Primary Care and was also a facilitator for new students at BSMS from the inception of the medical school until 2012”
