“THERE AND BACK”

Come and hear 3 prize winning Elective presentations from 4th year students from Brighton and Sussex Medical School!

Medical students are given time out from their studies to go “on an Elective”. They are given a free hand to study anywhere in the world and pursue any branch of medicine they would like. This is a marvellous opportunity for adventure, to follow a special interest and see how other countries organise their health provision. These Electives are often life-changing experiences. The knowledge and insights gained can profoundly affect the way future doctors see their own place in the health system.

John Shenouda’s talk is entitled “The Cycle of Poverty and Disease: Uganda’s Double Disease Burden”.

In India Irene Francis worked at the Christian Medical College at Vellore and her presentation is “Affordable World Class Health Care”.

Back to Africa where Cieran Roe was based in Malawi and he will tell us about the “Medical Memoirs from the Warm Heart of Africa”
